PRCP members will receive a free subscription of the Journal. Both print and electronic version will be available. There will be no cost for the PRCP to operate the journal. Wiley-Blackwell will be responsible for all administrative tasks and seek sponsors and advertisements to cover the cost. If Wiley-

Blackwell cannot raise enough sponsorship, there will be re-negotiation after two years. If Wiley-Blackwell raises more revenues than the actual costs, PRCP will receive 10% of the surplus income. The Board members applauded Prof Tasman's achievement with Wiley-Blackwell. There will be a launch of the Journal at the Welcome Reception and the inaugural Editorial Board Meeting on the 1 November 2008. The first issue will be published probably during the summer 2009. 6. President's report (Prof Allan Tasman)

Prof Tasman first clarified the need to update the by-law changes which were agreed upon by the board previously to include new membership categories and the inclusion of 2 Vice-Presidents as Officers of the Board.. These changes have already been approved at the previous Board meeting.

6.1. Proposed by-law change (Profs Tasman and Chiu)

6.1.1. Board members number (Prof Tasman)

Prof Tasman proposed to amend in Article V, Section 2 of the By-law of the Pacific Rim College of Psychiatrists, the number of Directors to 16-20, instead of 12. There was discussion regarding the appropriateness of minimum number of the board members, scope of expanding PRCP activities and the procedures of amendment and to call for general meeting. Motion was approved unanimously and the proposal will be tabled for voting at the General Meeting.

6.1.2. Board members attendance at meetings

Prof Chiu discussed necessity to set a rule regarding the required attendance for the board members. The board decided to include this in organization operational procedures rather than in bylaw.

The following operational procedure was agreed upon by the board:

At the time of a new appointment of a board member, such individual should be made aware of the expectation that each board member should attend all PRCP board meetings and the PRCP congress, which occur during his or her term. To be eligible for re-nomination, in addition to the criteria specified by the bylaws, the board member must have attended at least fifty percent of the board meetings during his or her term, including the board meeting which occurs during the biennial congress, and attendance at that congress. In case of emergency that prevents attendance, the president may ask the board for an exception regarding the individual being considered for re-nomination.
